CENTRE IS READY FOR SHOPPERS

AFTER all the waiting, the new-look £60 million County Square shopping centre opens its doors tomorrow – transforming the town into a major shopping destination.

The eagerly-anticipated extension to the popular town centre complex will double its size and breathe new life into the very heart of the town.

Running just a week late – with the delay blamed on bad weather conditions this winter – the centre is anchored by a massive three-storey Debenhams store which has created 150 jobs alone.

Other new outlets opening for business for the first time on Thursday will include fashion giants Next, H&M, River Island, New Look and Jane Norman.

And more big names are promised as centre chiefs continue negotiations to fill the remaining new units.

Commercial manager at County Square, Frances Burt, said: "We are in talks with a lot of people, and the negotiations are going extremely well. But until we actually put pen to paper we can't reveal who they are. But they will be familiar names."

Jo James from the Invicta Chamber of Commerce, which represents local businesses, believes the expanded centre will finally see the town delivering on its promises to be a genuine shopping destination.

She said: "This is great news for the town. It is what we have needed for a long time. I think it is positive for the whole of Ashford, whether it is its businesses or its residents. It now means the town has a lot more to offer people."

"This will revive the town centre and encourage people from Ashford and further afield to come back into the town. The fact that we have a much better shopping area also encourages other businesses that are

TOWN IS ON THE UP

A glimpse inside the expanded County Square reveals state-of-the-art design for a centre which should finally allow Ashford to compete with neighbouring towns.

Tomorrow's unveiling will be followed on April 26 with a special family fun day to celebrate the complex's opening.

Villagers to fight lorry park plans

■ BY ED HILL

MORE than 100 angry villagers in Sellindge gathered on Monday to discuss battle plans to fight proposals for a 70-hectare lorry park to ease the problem of Operation Stack.

As exclusively revealed in last week's Yourashford, a rural site between junctions ten and 11 of the M20 – on land bordering Sellindge, Smeeth and Aldington has been earmarked for a 3,000-strong lorry park.

The site, which will cost £40m, will ease the problems caused on the motorway when Operation Stack is phased in, while providing a permanent lorry park for 500 trucks.

But villagers are furious at the proposals and say they intend to fight the plans, which they say will blight their homes and way of life.

Shocked

Although identified as Kent County Council's 'preferred site', planning permission, funding and the acquisition of the land all stands in the way of it getting the green light – with the park unlikely to be ready for business until 2010 at the earliest.

At Monday night's meeting at the village sport and social club, chairman and local resident Ronald Lello said the entire community had been shocked by the news of the lorry park's proximity.

He said: "At the moment we are all getting to grips with what is happening to the village at this time."

Not only does the village have the prospect of fighting the lorry park, but also plans for a massive recycling plant opposite the Airport Café.

The meeting began with an address by Sean Furey from the

EXCLUSIVE: Yourashford revealed plans for M20 lorry park last week

Campaign to Protect Rural England, who said that the lorry park was not the solution to Kent's transport problems.

He said: "The problem is that the growth of lorry traffic is growing faster than it can keep up with. Once this park is full we will have to look for another site and then another."

David Plumstead, who has campaigned against other road and waste issues in the past, said the villagers should consider non-violent direct action to protest against the lorry park and the recycling plant.

Ashford council has said it will consult with local people before there is any prospect of the park going ahead.

Villagers in Sellindge now plan to set up a co-ordinated campaign against both the lorry park and the waste plant. Proposals include setting up a website, establishing a petition and the creation of a fighting fund.

New-look centre to boost local economy looking to relocate in the borough. I can't wait to use it myself."

The County Square development is part of a massive £600m which is being invested in the town due to its growth area status.

And with plans afoot to persuade other retailers in the town to open on Sundays, it is hoped millions of additional pounds will start to flow into the local economy as people opt to shop in town rather than travelling to nearby Canterbury or Maidstone.

In order to accommodate the extra shoppers due to flood into the town, a free shuttle bus service will operate during peak shopping periods, between the temporary car park in Dover Place and the Stour Centre.

The centre has also added 220 extra spaces to its car park, bringing the total to 600 – all of which will be available from tomorrow.

Thursday's opening of the new complex will be followed by a glitzy official ceremony on April 26, when entertainment and family fun events will be laid on to draw attention to the shopping experience now on our doorstep.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Stack problems on agenda at meeting

TRANSPORT experts from Britain and France met at the Ashford International Hotel yesterday to discuss the problems of freight travelling across the county.

And according to experts, freight traffic in the county is set to double from 3.5million in 2005 to 7.1m in 2030.

The problems of freight transport in the county were highlighted by the longest-running Operation Stack, caused by French ferry officers strike which finally ended on Friday.

Post offices will not be bailed out by KCC

KENT County Council has ruled out the chances of it taking over the running of post offices threatened with closure.

It had been hoped the council may follow Essex County Council's example which says it may take over running 15 post offices that are said to be no longer viable. But KCC say they will not follow suit.

Three Ashford branches are to close, in Beaver Road, Hythe Road and Gladstone Road, South Willesborough.

Pizza place topping is burnt in big blaze

■ BY ED HILL

PIZZA Express chiefs say they expect to be welcoming diners again within days – despite a blaze ripping through the restaurant's roof on Sunday morning.

More than 40 firefighters tackled the inferno which started in flats above the restaurant in North Street at around 7am.

As fire and police experts probe the debris to discover the cause of the fire, the restaurant says it expects to be back in business by the weekend.

A spokeswoman for the popular chain, Harriet Harrison, said: "The fire caused some damage to the rear of the building and the roof, but the customer areas were unaffected.

"The restaurant will be closed for a few days but should reopen before the weekend. The cause of the fire is still under investigation."

At the fire's peak, neighbouring flats were evacuated and several surrounding roads were closed to prevent the blaze spreading to nearby properties.

No-one was injured during the drama which took place through much of Sunday as emergency services battled to bring the fire under control.

A fire brigade spokesman said: "We were called to the incident at 7.10am. When fire fighters arrived at the scene the roof and the second floor was well alight.

"Seven fire engines attended the scene. Firefighters used breathing apparatus to carry out a full search of the building but everyone was accounted for."

The building has suffered substantial damage in the fire. A quarter of the roof has been damaged by smoke and water, along with some of the two floors below.

The fire was contained to the restaurant building and by 3pm the operation was being scaled down.

The firefighters' spokesman said: "Efforts made by fire crews managed to prevent the fire spreading further."

"This was the reason so many resources were sent to the scene."

The firefighters cut away part of the roof to allow ventilation to get into the building.

The spokesman added: "This was to prevent lateral fire spread."

"A lot of cutting away of the roof structure was needed to prevent it spreading any further."

Medical centre given all clear

PLANS for a multi-million pound medical centre on the Eureka Business Park have jumped the first hurdle.

Council planners gave outline plans for the £50 million 'centre of clinical excellence' the thumbs up – but say traffic issues must be resolved.

Concerns have been raised over the amount of traffic using junction nine of the M20 for the building, which, as reported in Yourashford last week, would boast 36 in-patient bedrooms, four operating theatres and create 150 jobs.

Ashford council also wants to negotiate with the developer over contributions towards community facilities.

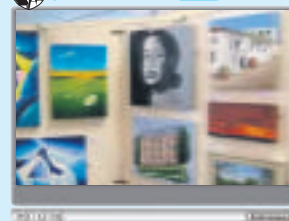

Though privately funded and operated, the clinic could also provide additional diagnostics and elective surgical capacity for NHS-funded patients.

Cllr John Kemp, portfolio holder for planning and development, said: "This centre will help meet the needs of an expanding population by providing additional capacity which the NHS can utilise to supplement existing medical facilities."

Vaccinate all your livestock, farmers told

BLUETONGUE still poses a significant threat to farming businesses in the borough according to the National Farmers' Union new chairman for Kent.

Kevin Attwood, who has a farm near Doddington, says farmers need to protect their animals against the disease as soon as they can.

Mr Attwood said: "This virus has the potential to devastate the sheep sector and cause severe impacts on cattle enterprises."

"The NFU is urging all livestock keepers, large and small, to contact their vet and express an interest in buying vaccine now."

"Our advice come May will be 'don't hesitate, vaccinate'. We have an opportunity to protect our livestock and we won't be deliberating – healthy livestock are essential to a farmer's livelihood – and we'd like to see 100 per cent uptake of vaccine for the vaccination programme to be effective."

One of the first cases of the disease was found at a sheep farm in Boughton Aluph last year.

The disease is passed from animal to animal by midges.

It had been hoped that a severe winter might kill off many of the insects but so far temperatures have not dropped low enough.

High-tech swoop proves expensive for one motorist

A CRACKDOWN on law-breaking motorists in Tenterden delivered one remarkable catch – a motorist who was forced to cough-up £1,300 in outstanding debts.

He was captured by the latest high-tech licence plate recognition system as police, the council, the DVLA and the Department of Work and Pensions blitzed motorists flouting the law.

And after his previous fines were presented to him – he paid up there and then.

Operation Solar, which took place on Friday, March 7, on the A28 between Bethersden and High Halden, hauled in a number of drivers to face the music.

Remarkably, out of all the cars stopped, officers discovered traces of illegal drugs in 22 of the vehicles.

Six vehicles were seized, four having no insurance. One person was arrested for driving a stolen car and possession of drugs.

Two were arrested for possessing stolen lead and numerous tickets were issued for defects on vehicles.

Police ran the operation by using a van equipped with automatic number plate recognition devices deployed at strategic locations on the A28.

Ashford council joined in on the act too – issuing two £300 fines for carrying waste without a licence.

Police found traces of drugs on 22 of the vehicles by taking swabs of the cars in a system called Ion Track drug testing.

Sgt Rachel Lovell said: "The day was very productive."

"We have sent out a strong message to members of the public who commit crime and vehicle offences, via the high profile policing and subsequent results, that such criminality will not be tolerated."

If you have information about vehicle crime you can contact police on 01233 660747.

THE route to Brussels may have been cut, and Paris services reduced, but passengers wanting to catch a Eurostar service direct to Disneyland Paris this summer from the international station have some good news.

Starting from July 18, extra new services will be laid on between the park in Paris and Ashford International. The extra trains will provide an additional 33,000 seats to and from the resort, with tickets now on sale.

The services will start at the new London St Pancras terminal.

Former barracks to get yet more homes

MORE homes are heading towards the new Repton Park development on the site of the old Templar Barracks.

Council planning chiefs gave the nod for a further 99 homes on the 50-hectare site, which, when completed will boast 1,250 homes in addition to shops, a primary school, doctor's surgery and a community centre.

The first phase of the development, consisting 83 homes, was recently completed, and phase two – comprising of a further 124 homes is already well underway.

New dentists takes the pain out of crisis

■ BY ED HILL

THE problems of finding a dentist in the town have been eased thanks to a new dental suite due to open later this month.

To be housed in the St Stephens Health Centre in Stanhope, the suite is set to provide cover for an additional 1,800 patients.

The news comes as a welcome relief for those looking to sign up to an NHS dentist after we revealed in January an emerging crisis in dentists taking on new patients.

But it is hoped the new state-of-the-art facility will take up much of the capacity that is required for the town.

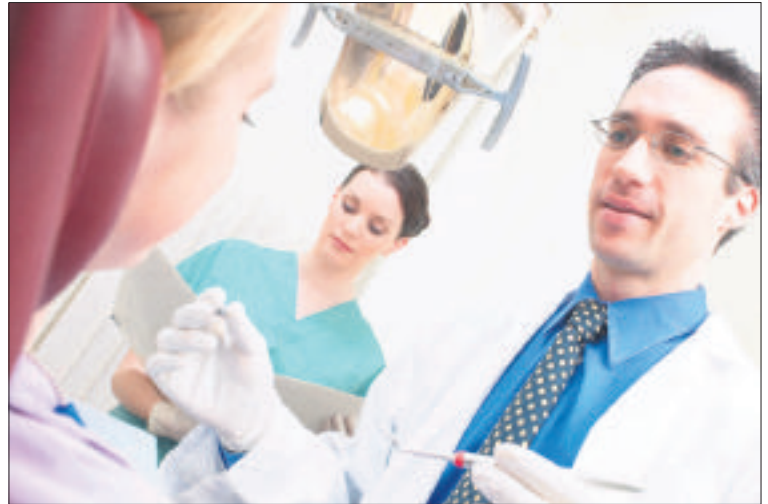

NHS spokesman Gary McFegan said: "The Eastern and Coastal Kent Primary Care Trust has been investing more money in local dental services and is pleased that the practice at St Stephens is able to take on some of that capacity, providing cover for an estimated 1,800 extra patients."

The new dental suite is run by the practice Beaconsfield Dental Services which offers both private and NHS treatment. It is expected the new suite will draw patients not only from Ashford but surrounding areas.

The practice will also have a few places for emergency cases that are referred to it.

Wole Adeyoye from Beaconsfield Dental Services said: "Stanhope is an area that needs good dental services. We need to get people to accept dental treatment as part of their everyday health rather than just treating them when pain occurs."

"Without the NHS money, running a practice there would not be economically viable. Part of our work not only involves treating patients but also trying to raise awareness about dental health in the community."

STATE-OF-THE-ART: A new dental suite is to be housed in the St Stephens Health Centre in Stanhope

Mr Adeyoye says patients can expect treatment from the latest equipment such as digital X-ray machines and full jaw X-rays.

He said: "When we started our practice at the health centre a little over 12 months ago, we had a waiting time of four months for NHS patients. That is now down to two weeks."

The shortage of NHS places at dentists up and down the country has been a recurring problem in recent years, as the cost implications have seen more and more dental practices opting instead only to handle private work. Even then, spaces have been limited.

Anyone who is interested in registering with this dental practice or needs a dentist in the Ashford locality should call the NHS Primary Care Trust on 0800 085 6606 where they can obtain details of all NHS dentists in the Eastern and Coastal Kent PCT area.

Firemen pedal up support

THREE firefighters are set to swap their hoses for pedal power in a charity cycle ride from Land's End to the Pilgrims Hospice in Hythe Road.

The three men – Andy Harris and Paul Boxall from White Watch and Kevin Teagle from Blue Watch – will set off on their three-day trip on June 3, with all money raised from the 345-mile ride going to two good causes.

Charities benefiting will be the Pilgrims Hospice and the Fire Service Benevolent Fund.

The trio have had special bikes provided to them – along with mechanical support – by the Beaver Road Halfords store.

Crew manager Andy Harris said: "It's quite daunting; we have to do 100 miles on a bike saddle each day. We have already begun the training towards it."

Luke White from Halfords said: "We always like to promote cycling in any way we can and seeing as these guys are doing the ride it should be good for them and good for cycling."

WASTE OF MONEY: MP Green says the best way to stop people getting into the country is through better policing

'ID cards won't stop illegal immigration problem in the UK'

DAMIAN Green has taken another swipe at the Government's controversial plans to introduce identity cards.

The local Conservative MP, speaking in the latest of a series of exclusive video interviews with Yourashford – and available to see, in full, via our free online broadband TV channel www.yourkenttv.co.uk – believes the cards will not tackle the problem of illegal immigration.

He said: "The ID scheme is an expensive waste of money that will not stop people who are trying to get into the country illegally such as those stowing away in the backs of lorries."

The MP says the best way to stop people getting into the country is through better policing than spending the estimated £20 billion on the ID card scheme.

He said: "I think a much more cost-effective way of dealing with illegal immigration would be to spend the money on bringing together the police, the immigration service and customs. There are many objections to ID cards anyway when it comes to giving over all our information to a government that is well known for losing it.

"People are attracted to the UK because we still have a relatively unregulated economy compared to France and Germany. It is seen as a country that is easy to get into and once you have groups of people here then word spreads back to their country of origin."

The MP's opposition to the introduction of ID cards was supported by James Pellat-Shand who runs the Canterbury branch of the campaign group No2ID.

He said: "All the ID card will do is drive illegal immigrants underground and make them even more marginalised than they are already."

Mr Pellat-Shand is urging those opposed to the introduction of ID cards in the town to now join forces and set up an Ashford branch of the No2ID group.

He said: "We already have groups in Dover, Thanet and Folkestone and we would welcome anyone who wants to start a group in Ashford themselves. We would give them all the help and support that we can."

Woodland garden buries closure fears to open

FEARS a popular woodland garden would be forced to stay shut this year have been eased after it was confirmed the attraction in Challock will be open in time for Easter.

Amid fears it was going to have to close for good after a troubled winter, the popular Beech Court Gardens will be open, with a host of events lined up for the Sunday and Monday.

Organisers say the Oast House Tearoom will be open for business, while an Easter trail will be lined up for children.

Essential work will then see it close only to reopen again in April until September.

Stanhope project is nominated for top collaboration award

THE redevelopment of Stanhope has been shortlisted for a major prize.

The annual Private Finance Initiative Awards celebrate outstanding collaboration between the private and public sector.

The £200 million Stanhope project signed between Ashford council and the Chrysalis Consortium last April has been included in the best community involvement category.

Cllr Peter Wood, portfolio holder for housing, said: "From the beginning, the council put in place structures that would ensure the community had a leading role in every decision taken on its behalf. That relationship not only fostered a wider sense of 'buy-in' but, importantly, enabled the council to present a project brief to private sector bidders which was shaped, endorsed and driven by the community."

The project will replace nine unpopular blocks of flats with more than 400 quality new homes. There will also be a new retail centre and other improvements to the area.

So far 85 of the 323 council-owned homes have been refurbished and construction is under way on four of the ten development sites.

The awards ceremony will take place at London's Grosvenor House Hotel on Tuesday, April 29.

Mr Wood added: "To be shortlisted for this award is a superb achievement in itself and just reward for a lot of hard work. Here's hoping we can go one better on the night."

QUESTION & ANSWER

PAUL BARTLETT

Q How long have you been connected with Ashford?

A I first moved to Ashford in 1976.

Q What do you like about the area and the town?

A The town is a unique place to be, small enough to retain its sense of identity but large enough to meet most requirements.

Q How did you get involved with Ashford council?

A I was first elected as councillor for Mersham, Smeeth and Sevington in May 1999.

Q What techniques does the council use to detect benefit fraud?

A About half the cases we investigate are detected through data-checking. We share information with a vast range of organisations – such as the Department For Work and Pensions, Inland Revenue and Kent County Council – and run regular data-matching services. If someone is claiming housing or council tax benefit the data search might reveal they are earning money which they have not declared to us.

The other half come from information from members of the public – tip-offs about colleagues or neighbours who appear to be claiming what they are not entitled to.

Q What do you see as the role of benefit fraud investigation in the community? What do you hope to achieve?

A Our team plays a vital role in tracking down, prosecuting and exposing people who are cheating the community by fraudulently claiming benefits. Benefit fraud is not a victimless crime. Every penny dishonestly claimed is money we ought to be spending on improving the borough for residents and visitors.

As well as clawing back the money – fraudsters are made to pay back every penny as well as face fines and the prospect of a prison sentence – our work sends out a loud and clear message that we will not tolerate cheats.

We want housing and council tax benefits to go to the people who genuinely need it, so we can spend the rest of our tight budget on delivering vital public services.

Q How is our Your Money, Your Loss Campaign helping you achieve that?

A Since the start of the campaign we've seen a big increase in the amount of public tip-offs we are receiving thanks to the extra publicity and that's fantastic. The campaign reinforces the fact that all honest, hard-working people are losing out thanks to a greedy minority of fraudsters. I am very grateful for the help that the campaign has given us. It also highlights the potentially very serious punishments handed out by courts for benefit fraud.

Q Ashford is a transport link to Europe. Do you feel more European?

A Being able to travel to Europe does not automatically mean we should feel more European. Europe remains remote and detached from most people's day-to-day lives. It is important that we continue to be part of Europe so that we can exploit the opportunities that it offers but we should not integrate for the sake of doing so.

Q Do you have a secret hobby or interest that people might be surprised to learn about?

A No secret hobbies but I do enjoy racing and showing my greyhounds.

Q Did you have any childhood heroes? What was it you admired about them?

A I admire anyone who is prepared to question what they are told. So often we hear that there are no alternatives and we must accept whatever is said. But this is so often not true – a determination to find other ways can achieve so much. We should always be prepared to challenge "authority" to try and do what is best.

• If you are aware of a benefit cheat then you can call the free and confidential Ashford council hotline on 08000 262456, giving as many details as possible, or call the council direct on 01233 330453.

Thousands travel to Kent leisure show

BY ROB LIVINGSTONE

MORE than 3,000 visitors attended the first Kent Travel and Leisure Show at the weekend, for what organisers are calling 'a phenomenal, successful event'.

Organisers had to open the doors early as the crowds gathered outside the spectacular Cruise Terminal 2 in Dover.

Inside more than 90 travel companies were represented, with something for everyone and to suit every pocket – from simple day trips in Kent to cruises around the world.

And there were plenty of chances to win holiday breaks. Travel giant Fred.Olson Cruises were giving the chance to win a variety of trips ranging from a three-night get-away to Europe, to a 14-day luxury cruise in a prize draw.

Folkestone-based Saga – the market leader in holidays for the over 50s – received hundreds of entries for the opportunity to win a cruise, and there were many other chances to win breaks and discounts at attractions across the county.

And for organisers at KOS Media – which also publishes this newspaper – it was conclusive proof that the idea for the show was a good one.

Event manager, Liz Hare, said the success demonstrated the demand for a top-level travel event outside London.

She said: "We had to open early because there were so many people, it was absolutely packed."

"The setting of the Port of Dover was perfect for the county's biggest travel and leisure show. Cruise Terminal 2 was a great venue for the show, we couldn't have asked for better."

Complete Cruise Solutions – which offers six leading cruise lines: P&O Cruises, P&O Cruises World Voyages, Princess Cruises, Cunard, Seabourn and Costa Cruises – even booked world cruises from visitors to their stand during Sunday's show.

Such was the level of demand that many companies had run out of brochures by midday and the popularity of the organised talks about different holidays, meant some presentations were limited to standing room only.

Ms Hare believes next year's show will build on the success of the inaugural event.

"It has shown that there is a huge demand for a quality travel show in Kent, next year's will be bigger and better."

KOS marketing director Richard Purvis said: "The show covered a wide range of travel and leisure and there was a very strong interest across the board."

"Exhibitors were obviously pleased, many saying they do a lot of these type of shows each year, but this was the best they had attended."

"Thanks to the level of interest every exhibitor we managed to see during the afternoon wanted to rebook for next year, and some want bigger and some more stands."

Join campaign to get Kent a network

ORGANISERS of a group on popular social networking website Facebook say users in the county are being 'ignored' by the site's chiefs.

Despite now having close to 30,000 members backing a call for users to be registered as living in Kent – and not London – Facebook chiefs are refusing to bow to public pressure.

The internet phenomena – which allows online "friends" to share messages, videos, music and messages – has a number of networks to which anyone who registers interest can be connected.

These include sites for different areas of the UK, and all major cities worldwide – such as New York, Sydney or Paris – have their own site. Such networks have become one of the current most popular ways of conveying information about upcoming events, as well as communicating breaking news.

But local users have remained frustrated that there remains no move to set up a dedicated Kent network.

Our sister paper, the Kentish Saturday Observer, first highlighted the problem last year. It prompted a flurry of media interest in the site and as the popularity of Facebook has grown so has the size of the group wanting action.

Stuart Baker is one Facebook user campaigning for a Kent network: "A while ago you featured a group who wanted a network for Kent... since your article the group has swollen to over 28,000 members and still we're ignored. Liverpool had a smaller group, but threatened to close all their accounts. They got a network within a week."

Such is the strength of feeling, there are now a handful of similar groups, all calling for a change in status.

The Facebook site calling for the county network appears with the following statement: "For some reason every other little village has a network and yet we have to bunk up with the London crowd. This is fine but... I'm not from London. I'm from Kent!"

Health secretary lends his support to our campaign

Hygiene in hospitals: it's down to all of us

Dear Readers,

TACKLING healthcare-associated infections and improving cleanliness in hospitals is a top priority for the Government and NHS, and we recognise that this is a key concern for the people of Kent. Patients have a right to clean and safe care wherever and whenever they are treated by the NHS.

Healthcare-associated infections are everyone's responsibility, from the chief executive, to the cleaner, to the clinician, to the public and to me. We all have our part to play in helping to prevent infections and treating them effectively if they do occur.

We published Clean, Safe Care: Reducing Infections And Saving Lives in January, which sets out the range of actions that are being taken across England to ensure we continue to make progress in tackling infections and improving cleanliness.

The rates of MRSA blood-stream infections have reduced significantly and we are currently on track to hit the challenging target of halving the number of cases by April 2008 from 2004 levels.

Maidstone and Tunbridge Wells NHS Trust is playing its part in this. I know that, since the trust prioritised infection prevention and control, it has driven down MRSA rates so that the trust is now the second-best-performing acute trust in the region.

We are beginning to see reductions in Clostridium difficile, with the latest statistics for the most vulnerable 65-and-over age group from the independent Health Protection Agency showing a reduction of 16 per cent against the same period last year.

After the tragic events of 2005 and the damning conclusions of the Healthcare Commission, I wanted to see and hear for myself, first-hand, how things had changed.

That is why I visited Maidstone Hospital, in November, to talk to staff, patients and some relatives of those who died.

I have also exchanged correspondence with Tony Charlton, one of the many local campaigners who is quite rightly holding everyone to account to ensure that hospital hygiene remains a top priority from the ward to the board and up to Whitehall.

During my visit, I was reassured by the scale of change – but none of us can afford to become complacent. We can only make the strides that are needed if we work together on this.

As I have already said, everyone has a role to play and I am, therefore, extremely pleased to see KOS Media's newspapers and the local NHS working in partnership to raise awareness of the actions that can be taken, such as good hand hygiene, to stop the spread of infections. I wish you every success in the campaign.

Yours sincerely,

Alan Johnson, Secretary of State for Health

KOS Media's campaign to tackle super-bugs through promoting basic hygiene has won the backing of Alan Johnson, the Secretary of State for Health.

Like us, Mr Johnson believes it is your responsibility to help our hard-working and dedicated NHS staff tackle healthcare-associated infections.

Simply washing your hands with liquid soap and water and using the alcohol provided in hospitals across Kent kills off bugs, including MRSA and Clostridium difficile.

And remember, if you don't think your consultant, doctor, nurse or other healthcare professional have washed their hands, challenge them, and if you are unhappy with hygiene standards in any ward, waiting room or GP surgery in the county, alert a member of staff.

This is Mr Johnson's letter of support to the campaign by NHS trusts across Kent and KOS Media.

KCC's top earners will remain secret

COUNTY Hall is refusing to reveal the names of its 16 civil servants who earn more than £100,000 a year – because it says it would infringe their human rights.

A request for their names by the Taxpayers' Alliance pressure group has been turned down by Kent County Council chief executive Peter Gilroy.

Mr Gilroy has said that he was nearly physically assaulted in a restaurant by a member of the public angry about the fact he has the biggest salary of any council official in England – around £230,000.

Cllr Alex King, deputy leader of KCC, said: "The county council has taken further advice from the director of law and governance.

"His advice is that this involves striking the right balance between transparency and accountability. On the one hand you have individual human rights, and data protection. On the other is the position that we have previously taken to withhold the identity of individual officers is entirely justified in the circumstances and should be maintained."

Study hits out at Darling's Budget

THE people of Kent feel the Government does not reward hard-working individuals enough.

Hundreds of residents were polled by market research company Local Opinion for their reaction to Chancellor Alistair Darling's first Budget.

The majority questioned thought the Budget would hit single-working people the hardest – making it expensive to live on your own.

The poll also found that a third of those living in the county felt the Budget would be unhelpful for the UK economy.

Forty-two per cent argued that Mr Darling should concentrate on building up reserves to guard against a slow-down of the economy and more than a third wanted a decrease in income tax.

To view the survey results visit www.localopinion.co.uk. To take part in future polls email info@localopinion.co.uk or call 01732 874054.

Students voice their ideas in special event

A SPECIAL conference focusing on the Student Voice scheme has taken place at Kennington's Towers School.

Designed to encourage children to engage in their own education, Student Voice gives pupils more say in the running of their schools.

And delegates from around the county descended on the Faversham Road school – in an event organised by 30 students and staff.

Staged for schools who are members of the Specialist Schools and Academies Trust (SSAT), the agenda of the meeting was put together by pupils at the school and featured a host of innovative ideas.

Among the items was an introductory rapping and singing session about the ethos of the school called 'In Pursuit of Excellence', a DVD film made by one of the students and a presentation explaining the significant difference that Student Voice has made in the school. There were also workshops about collaborative lessons between students and staff.

■ BY ED HILL

Rosemary Colbourn, SSAT regional co-ordinator was delighted with the results. She said: "It was an outstanding event that should be replicated by other schools."

Catherine St Ville, assistant headteacher at Towers and the event's organiser said: "I am thrilled that such a huge diversity of students were involved in creating this innovative and lively occasion for the trust."

"It is vital to actively involve students in school improvement, so that they know we are all working together."

"The school continues to be at the leading edge of Student Voice innovation, with the intention of enabling every student's voice to be heard and listened to. This will mean that all our students 'buy-in' to their learning and school experience, allowing them to make as much progress as possible and become truly independent learners because every member of the school community will genuinely be working together."

Inspirational runner motivates pupils

PARALYMPIC gold medallist runner Tim Prendergast will be making three visits to the North School this year.

His first visit was part of a campaign designed to inspire young children through sport, sponsored by Sky TV and organised by the Youth Sport Trust.

The athlete met with a group of Year 8 and 9 pupils aged 12-14 and shared with them his achievements and gave a motivational talk.

The New Zealand star won his gold at the Athens Paralympics in the 800 metres. He has suffered nearly 90 per cent loss of his vision. This year he will be running in the 1,500 and 5,000 metres at the Beijing Paralympics.

The Sky Living for Sport programme uses athlete mentors to inspire children through personal stories from their childhoods and their experiences as successful athletes.

Biathlon competitors triumph at Bath Uni

FOUR students from Ashford School have won medals at the National Schools' Biathlon championships. This year's event was held at Bath University.

Biathlon competitions see the students compete in both running and swimming events.

The four students were Grace Nicholls, Natasha French and Grace's two younger brothers, Max and Euan.

Each week we get a mystery writer to air their views on living in the district of Ashford...

Cool Clarkson will have to play it safe next time

JEREMY Clarkson last week made his way onto the front pages of certain tabloid papers courtesy of taking a phone call as he made his way along the M40.

The Top Gear star was kindly snapped by a couple of passing motorists... meaning that for a few seconds at least, in one lane was a bloke travelling at 70mph using his phone... and in the lane next to him, a couple busily trying to draw alongside, with pound signs flashing in their eyes, trying him to take a photo of him.

There's an argument as to who was driving the most stupidly to be had here, but let's avoid that for the time being.

Because in this neck of the woods the chance of being able to travel along the M20, say, in two lanes, at such speeds, is something only the most optimistic lorry driver would believe as he spots the glowing red brake lights representing the latest phase of the seemingly never-ending Operation Stack.

In truth, the police could probably have an absolute field day at the moment as tens of thousands of us, wherever we live in the county, and wherever we are heading to, find ourselves stuck in traffic and making a sneaky phone call to tell work/loved ones we are going to be late.

And while not condoning phone use while driving, it does re-open the debate about the alternatives.

Bluetooth phones are one thing, but not all of us want to look like Uhura out of Star Trek with one of those funny little wireless things attached to our ears.

Where once City boys in London wore them as a badge of pride, affluence and power, today it's the fashion equivalent of wearing your keys on a chain attached to the rungs of your trouser belt, or clipping your mobile to your waistband. Not cool. At all.

Of course, some cars come complete with clever devices which allow you to speak without a phone clamped, illegally, to your ear, or looking like you have a hearing problem or are stuck in a fashion timewarp. But then if you do drive past a policeman seemingly talking to yourself, the chances are they'll pull you over and the long-arm of the law will go rummaging in their pocket for their trusty notebook to ask why you appeared to be mouthing obscenities in their direction as you drove past.

And that scenario always relies on you getting the blummin' things to work properly in the first place, as opposed to acting out the famous train conversation of 'I'm in a train... I can't hear you... hang on, I'm going through a tunnel' as you cruise along the A roads.

I'm sure Mr Clarkson is considering all the options available to him. And as a man who has a curly perm and wears suit jackets with jeans, I confidently expect him to take his next in-car call... with an ear piece attached to his lug-hole.

TALK TIME

TOM SHAW

The manager of the new Marfells of Kent greengrocers in the Upper High Street, discusses his business and life in the town

How long have you lived in the town?

I was born in the William Harvey Hospital, so I have lived around here all my life.

The shop seems slightly different from a normal greengrocers, why is that?

We like to think of ourselves as a farm shop on the High Street. We source as much of our produce from Kent as we can. We not only sell fruit and veg, we sell organic meat too. We bake our own bread and sell coffee, soup and sandwiches that we have made ourselves. We used to have a greengrocers shop down near Wilkinsons. We then opened a shop in Folkestone that was a big success, so we thought why not try it in Ashford? As the weeks have gone by we have just got busier and busier and we have not really advertised that much as well. It is mainly through word of mouth. We also supply food to a lot of local organisations.

How did you get involved in the shop?

The shops are owned by two brothers Mark and Stuart Finnis. I have been working for them for about ten years. It started out as a Saturday job and I have gradually worked my way up.

What else is happening in the shop?

In the next week or so we are going to start an exotic range of fruit and veg. There are a lot of Gurkhas who live in the town who say they have trouble finding the sort of fruit and veg they want to use in their cooking. So we are doing this to hopefully meet their needs.

What about your home life?

I have just become a new dad. I have a nine week old son. It was a shock at first but it's the best thing that could ever happen.

YOUR LETTERS

Landscape faces a stack of problems

While I know that Operation Stack brings our roads to a grinding halt seemingly every day, I cannot help but think creating a huge lorry park in our countryside is a backward step.

Ashford and its surrounding villages has already seen a gradual erosion of the beautiful landscape around us as new homes and estates spring up with alarming regularity.

Now those of us taking refuge in the country must face the roar of lorry engines night and day.

Gwen Taylor
Aldington

Will the public purse cover park costs?

I assume the money needed to fund this new massive lorry park will eventually come out of the public purse?

But surely it is the cross-Channel operators who must be asked to stump up some cash?

After all, Operation Stack only comes into force when there is a hold-up at the ports – more often than not due to industrial action.

When passengers for flights from airports find themselves facing hold-ups, it's not the public purse which finances their enforced overnight stays.

caused by all the lorries parking in our streets or on the motorway, yet once a solution appears, everyone complains. I'm sure having a lorry park near your home is not ideal, but the location suggested is rural enough to prevent it causing problems for too many of us and at least we can all get to and from work without adding an extra hour to our journey.

As Damian Green said in your paper last week, Operation Stack has a hugely damaging effect on the town's economic health and drags our reputation down every time our town is mentioned in news reports.

Hopefully, once this park is complete, we can finally put this sorry traffic saga to bed.

Gordon O'Sullivan

Lorry parks won't go down in history

So after being identified as a key housing growth area, we are now faced with being a growth area for jumbo lorry parks too?

What a great shame this historic town is being utilised in such a way.

Not healthy situation for town's roads

I read with interest about the outline planning application for the new medical centre on the Eureka Leisure Park (Healthy investment plan for new clinic, Yourashford, March 12).

However, if granted, will it not put a huge amount of pressure on traffic issues around junction nine, which is already very busy at the best of times?

I worry that the development of these areas will put increased pressures on key parts of the town and turn them into replicas of the problems seen at junction ten.

Secret act, secret location, but we can get you there

INVICTA FM is once again bringing one of the UK's biggest artists to a secret venue in Kent.

Yourlocal has teamed up with Invicta FM and has two pairs of tickets for this brilliant act live at the secret location on March 31.

The as yet un-named act will be the latest in a string of UK music stars to join ranks with Kent's radio station and perform in front of just 200 people in an exclusive one off concert.

The exclusive James Morrison gig took place at the Old Brewery in Canterbury, when he played an hour-long set to a crowd of specially invited winners, performing hits such as Wonderful World and

You Give Me Something. Invicta also had Will Young Live at the Local at Chilham Village Hall, a great venue for such an artist.

Pavarotti is back larger than life

Welsh brothers bring the story of the world's most famous tenor to the stage

THE legacy of world-famous opera singer Luciano Pavarotti is celebrated in an emotional new production.

One of the genre's biggest stars, in every sense, Pavarotti brought his art to the masses without compromising on his identity as an opera singer. Now Welsh brothers Wynne and Marc Evans are bringing their celebration of his life and work to Kent.

Supported by the Schomberg String Quartet and piano, the brothers will trace Pavarotti's journey from his humble beginnings in Modena to the dazzling heights of La Scala and The Met. They will be performing songs from Rigoletto, Tosca, Pagliacci, Madame Butterfly, La Bohème and many more.

The show will climax with an emotional rendition of Nessun Dorma, which became his signature tune.

"It's a real honour to be involved in a concert that pays tribute to the greatest singer of our generation, and possibly of all time," Wynne said.

"Not only did Pav have a great instrument, but he was undoubtedly the greatest technician ever."

Childhood

Pavarotti was born on the outskirts of Modena in Italy, the son of a baker and a cigarette factory worker. He had a poor but happy childhood and his father was reported to be a strong, if shy, singer.

World War Two forced them out of the city and into country lodgings, which led to the boy developing an interest in farming.

He also seriously considered a career as a professional footballer, though his mother convinced him to train as a teacher. But he had been heavily influenced by singers such as Giuseppe Di Stefano and Mario Lanza and eventually he could not contain his desire to become a tenor.

His father reluctantly agreed to allow the move and he struck a deal with his son – Pavarotti would receive free board and lodging until he was 30, but if he failed to succeed by then he would have to return to a normal living.

He began studying music seriously at the age of 19 in 1954 and found he had a remarkable natural talent. But the first six years were not particularly successful and when he developed a nodule on his vocal cords he decided to give up on his dream.

However, this blow proved to be the turning point, as the release from stress seemed to not only banish the nodule but also improve his voice.

He gradually achieved his coveted success, singing all over the world and becoming a huge star in the opera world. But it was his performance of Nessun Dorma during the 1990 World Cup that made him a household name, bringing opera to football fans.

Over the decades he won a Grammy Legend Award, performed to crowds as big as 300,000, set world records and carried out many humanitarian projects. He died of pancreatic cancer in September 2007.

The performance starts at 7.45pm and tickets cost £22.50 and £20.50. Phone the box office on 01322 220000, or book online at www.orchardtheatre.co.uk.

Festival to field a great mix of musical talent

BY SIMON ROBINSON

THE RECIPE for a top summer festival is based on only two staple ingredients – a big field and live bands.

Organisers behind the Canterbury-based Lounge on the Farm three-dayer have taken these bread and butter basics and added a number of mouth-watering extras, the equivalent of half a dozen 'cherries on top'.

Take for example the bands already booked to play at the third annual event: eclectic rock 'n' rollers Art Brut, indie up-and-comers Black Kids and former Dexy's Midnight Runners frontman Kevin Rowland have already put pen to paper.

Just to clarify, that's Kevin Rowland, the voice behind wedding/end of disco classics Come on Eileen and Geno, to name but two classic Dexy's tracks.

Add a plethora of Kent-based bands such as Underground Heroes; Wild Billy Childish and the Musicians of the British Empire; Pete Molinari; Kitty, Daisy and Lewis; and Holly Golightly and the Broke Off to the line-up and the festival is already at risk of bubbling over.

But there's more. LOTF 2008 will boast its own cider, brewed locally at Pawley Farm, which has been busy fermenting in aged oak barrels for the past two years.

So we have top bands, a top venue in Merton Farm and specially-brewed alcohol to help keep temperatures down in the soaring summer sunshine.

A spokesman for LOTF said: "Kent's coolest festival returns for its third outing in July and it's even bigger and bolder than before with increased capacity and new stages.

"Last year's event established LOTF as a heavyweight festival with a uniquely local twist and 2008 is set to take the extravaganza to the next level.

"Set in the idyllic surrounds of Merton Farm, LOTF's rustic charms will play host to 160 bands spread across six stages, featuring everyone from local heroes and cutting edge acts to renowned heavy hitters."

The festival runs from Friday to Sunday,

July 11-13.

Early bird weekend tickets cost £65 for an adult, £35 for a child and £140 for a family, based on two adults and two children.

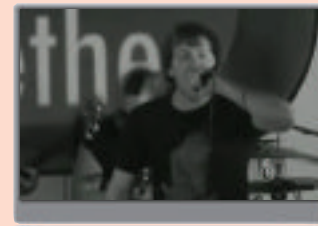

Full weekend prices are set at £85 for adults, £40 for children and £180 for families.

A day pass will cost an adult £35 and a child £20. Children under five go free.

Thirty minutes to boost health

Curves

WITH today's busy lifestyle, a fitness facility in Ashford is promising to transform your physical and mental well-being with an easy to follow, short-blast programme.

Curves' popular exercise programme has proved a bit hit, giving women with hectic schedules the perfect opportunity to get fit quick.

Owner of Curves, Gina Hawkins, said: "A common complaint of women is that they just don't have time to exercise."

"The Curves 30-minute complete workout provides the solution. For half an hour you move around a circuit changing stations every 30 seconds. You need not rush to a class or worry about a schedule. When you turn up your workout begins - just jump in anywhere and start.

"The unique features of hydraulic resistance make it possible to perform strength and cardiovascular training at the same time. You push with one muscle group and pull back with the opposing one. The intensity easily elevates and sustains your target heart rate."

"Sustained heart rate activity conditions your body to access fat for energy."

"During the first few minutes of exercise your muscles will primarily burn energy in the bloodstream and glycogen stored in the muscle. As you continue to exercise, your body will begin to access more stored fat and your body will become more proficient at accessing fat as you exercise on a regular basis.

"The 30-second intervals were chosen because they are the optimal time for a strength training set. Your muscles can 'sprint' for about half-a-minute before they begin to exhaust."

Fashionable store has grand designs

Vida

IT may still be a relative newcomer, but designer store Vida has quickly become one of the most popular places to shop for those wanting to be en vogue.

Based at the Merham-Le-Hatch Business Village in Ashford, Vida stocks a range of accessories and opened its doors at the fast-growing site in November. And with well-informed staff on hand to give valuable advice, it is growing in reputation.

Owner Margaret Bracewell explains: "I sell designer handbags, shoes, boots, leather gloves, leather belts, leather jewellery boxes, purses and scarves. All the goods are exclusive and individually sourced."

"As an independent retailer I can give individual and informed advice to each customer. All the stock is exclusive and is displayed to highlight each individual piece in its own space."

"The designer handbags sell very well, particularly the Italian company, Ripani and London firm Billy Bag."

"Customer service is vital to running a business, alongside stocking the quality of goods to suit the requirements of customers. Staff must be knowledgeable about the products. In the case of Vida, the location and design of the shop in a beautiful historic area can only add to the success."

"The Merham-Le-Hatch Business Village is in such a lovely setting. It's a gem of a location with some superb businesses as neighbours, such as the Secret Garden restaurant and Macknade Fine Foods to name just two."

TOP TIPS

Think SlimNTrim

Are you eating low fat, yet putting on weight? Then reduce white wheat such as bread, pasta, biscuits and cereals from your diet - as well as potatoes. You also burn fat after exercise, so choose weight training as it can give a fat burn for up to 24-hours.

Vida

This spring and summer seasons' colours are bright zingy cobalt blue, fuchsia pink, brilliant red and yellow. Many of the leather goods at this year's London Fashion Week were in patent and metallic finishes so discard winter's gloom and shine.

Wells Clinic

People are turning to cosmetic treatments to treat ageing - and now there's another revolutionary method - Titan. This non-invasive, painless treatment reverses the ageing process by stimulating skin to renew itself by tightening and lifting.

YOUR TV REVIEW

■ BY TOM BETTS

DELIA
BBC Two, 8pm, Wednesdays
THE CURSE OF COMEDY
BBC Four, 9pm, Wednesdays

IN life there are three things on which you can rely: Death, taxes and Delia Smith... or so I thought.

The dependable face of British cookery, has not so much pressed the self-destruct button with her latest screen venture, but she's bashing it to kingdom come with a rolling pin.

Not content with wrecking the fortunes of a football club, Delia is now wrecking her own TV career.

Delia lost it for good around five minutes into the first installment of new series.

In a move that makes her now infamous "let's be having you" call to arms on the pitch at Norwich City look sane in comparison, she got out the pre-made, frozen mashed potatoes. Yep, Delia has ditched making her own ingredients in favour of using any old gubbins she can haul out of the freezer cabinets of the country's supermarkets instead.

This isn't so much cooking as cobbling something together in a way that makes Ready Steady Cook look like Heston Blumenthal.

I'm no stranger to junk food, but even I hadn't heard of frozen mash (used three times in half-an-hour), not to mention the bags of potato wedges and pre-grated cheese!

If Kerry Katona's gone to Iceland, Delia Smith has moved to the North Pole.

Most celebrity chefs will stop at nothing to promote their latest book, but Delia seems intent on clearing the show of cooking to make room for extolling the virtues of the Canaries instead. The programme also features a large helping of her husband, but here she is not just married to Michael, she's taking it out of us.

BAD TASTE: Has Delia cooked up a stinker?

Coming next week: How to buy a Big Mac.

Keep an eye out for Hancock and Joan on BBC Four tonight.

The drama follows the breakdown of John Le Mesurier and wife Joan's marriage as she falls for inspired but flawed comedy icon, Tony Hancock (played here by Ken Stott).

Parts of this were filmed in Thanet and if previous efforts at this kind of throwback, uniquely British showbiz story are anything to go by, then we could be in for a real treat.

The BBC ploughed a similar furrow with the touching Fantabulosa, a look at the life of Kenneth Williams, a few years ago and came up trumps.

Hancock and Joan screens on BBC Four next Wednesday, but the Curse of Comedy season begins tonight with the Curse of Steptoe.

YOUR WEEK'S HOROSCOPE

BY RUSSELL GRANT

AQUARIUS (Jan 21-Feb 19)

IT'S always been difficult for you to go on faith, and that is especially true this week. You're being asked to cast your doubts aside for the sake of a crazy dream. Unfortunately, you're not getting a lot of affirmation as far as this project is concerned.

A FITNESS regimen may not be as effective as you had hoped, but don't throw in the towel just yet. Give yourself a reward every time you achieve your exercise goals. Take a younger person's fears seriously. You don't like having your concerns brushed aside.

TRYING to catch up on work will be like wading through treacle. Distractions meet you at every turn. There's really not much you can do to improve this situation except to stay disciplined and stick at it. Happily, this trend of setbacks will end next week.

SCORPIO (Oct 24-Nov 22)

TRYING to relax will be very difficult, as there seems to be lots of drama surrounding you. If you're forced to take a stand, it may be better to issue a stern warning than impose a punishment. People have a tendency to overreact. Don't believe the hype.

Murder most horrid

BY LAURA WURZAL

AS WE finished dinner a woman staggered down the hotel staircase calling for help and vainly tried to remove the kitchen knife lodged firmly in her back.

The clues were already slotting into place on another typical night of high drama on a Joy Swift Original Murder Weekend.

Joy organised her first weekend in 1981 and since then has built up a business which earned her an MBE for services to tourism in 2001.

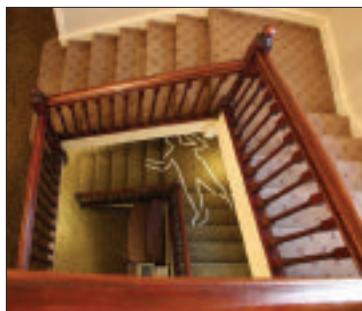

Surrounding herself with a group of actors, Joy's winning formula is to keep the weekend as realistic and contemporary as possible.

Until the detective completes his summing-up at noon on Sunday, guests must believe these characters are real people with credible motives for behaving the way they do.

Joy hosts weekends exclusively with Mercure Hotels, including the White Hart in Salisbury.

This elegant classical 17th century building, directly opposite Salisbury Cathedral, is perfectly placed to explore the city's shops.

The theme for our weekend – Brave Hearts – was slotting into place nicely over the welcome drinks. Joy was acting too, her character Ali swiftly establishing herself as a bitter, rude, suicidal drunk, either moaning about her life or arguing with fellow guests.

DASTARDLY DEEDS: Could you solve a murder?

On our table sat a character called Tim, a man of 32 with the mental age of a 15-year-old boy due to a freak accident years earlier, who was left in tears after one confrontation with Ali. By the end of the evening she had been clubbed to death with a bottle.

The next morning we used our free time to explore Salisbury. Our first stop the cathedral, a magnificent early English Gothic structure built in the 13th century with the tallest spire in the UK at 404ft.

The most famous item in the cathedral is one of the four original copies of the Magna Carta, the charter signed by King John at Runnymede in 1215. This milestone in British history placed constitutional restraints on both monarchy and state.

We found time too to explore the splendours of Stonehenge, over 4,000 years old and the crowning glory of the New Stone Age in Britain, which still looks awesome today.

Five stone archways are set in a V and inside sits a horseshoe pattern of 19 bluestones, brought all the way from Wales. Surrounding this centre-piece are two circles of stones, all aligned with an axis pointing to Midsummer sunrise on the longest day of the year.

Saturday's lunch was followed by an afternoon of games back at the hotel – and if anyone feared their sleuthing wasn't up to Miss Marple's standard, they could chase prizes in the music quiz, the bingo or wordsearch games.

Then it was back to our detective work, because soon afterwards there was a second murder and a blazing row, revealing further clues and possible motives.

Attracting singles, couples, groups of friends and even hen parties, murder weekends work because they get people to talk to each other.

Sunday's denouement was an exciting affair, with the detective revealing whodunit, and why. I was right in thinking Tim was behind all the murders, but missed out on his motive.

Joy's brochure describes her Original Murder Weekends as "25 years of fun, laughter and dastardly deeds".

Once you get the bug for sleuthing, you tend to go back for more.

Jennifer shows her tough side

■ BY KATE WHITING

"ME mam, me dad and me nan saw it last night. I was rather worried because of all the swear words, but they loved it!"

Jennifer Ellison is speaking about her second-ever movie outing as a hostage in The Cottage - and she had reason to worry about her family's reaction to the film.

But it's not just her character's fruity vocabulary that might have disturbed her innocent grandma in the comedy horror - it's also the scene where she meets a sticky end at the hands of a deranged farmer.

Surely they minded that bit?

"No, they loved the film, thought it was great," the Liverpoolian says breezily.

Landing her first lead female film role, after a smaller part in 2004's The Phantom Of The Opera, is a big deal for the former Brookside starlet, but she's taking it all in her stride, insisting she wasn't nervous about the project.

"Not really, because everyone made me feel so welcome and at ease - it was just a pleasure," the 24-year-old gushes.

Jen plays Tracey, the daughter of a wealthy nightclub owner who is kidnapped by two brothers (Andy Serkis and Reece Shearsmith) and taken to a remote cottage.

But if the kidnappers thought tracksuit and Uggs-clad Tracey would be the model hostage, they were wrong.

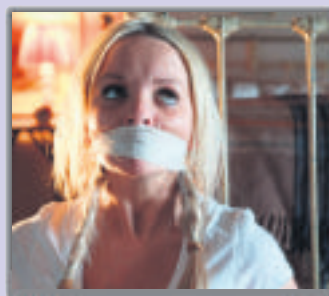

"She's the ultimate bitch," explains Jennifer. "She's very nasty and just awful to be around. I'd hate to be in her company, but she's a great character to play. She has some great one-liners, but I don't think many people will like her!"

As Tracey is bundled from the boot of a car, into the cottage and upstairs to a bedroom, she puts up a good fight and even manages to break a kidnapper's nose.

But Jennifer says she needed no training for the scrap. "It actually came naturally, which was rather worrying because my mum said she didn't know I could punch like that," she says.

The film is a tale of two halves. Feisty Tracey manages to overcome Peter (Shearsmith) - the weaker of the two brothers - and forces him out of the cottage at knife-point before leading him through a wood to a secluded farmhouse.

And that's where things turn really nasty, as the pair come face-to-face with a disfigured farmer who has a penchant for chopping up trespassers.

Writer and director Paul Andrew Williams approached Jennifer about the role two years ago, but it wasn't until last spring they finally got to make the film.

"As soon as I read the script I just fell in love with Tracey. I was hoping [the film] would come off because I just loved the part so much. She's such a strong character and, obviously, to be playing the female lead in a film is great."

The Cottage takes place entirely under cover of darkness, so filming started at 8pm and would go on until 5am.

After starring in the West End production of Chicago and again on tour last year, you'd think Jennifer would be used to such gruelling schedules, but apparently not.

"It was really tiring," she admits. "We had sleep deprivation, which would send people delirious and it was freezing. I was the only person who wasn't wearing a jacket, so it was very, very, very, very challenging!"

Chancellor budgets for greener living

A SERIES of eco-friendly moves were announced in chancellor Alistair Darling's budget which are intended help households looking to go green.

Energy companies will now be obliged – through the Carbon Emissions Reduction Target (CERT) – to give their customers superior deals for energy efficiency measures.

Cavity wall insulation and loft insulation will also be made available to nearly three million homes, along with more energy efficient appliances and light bulbs.

Mr Darling also offered £26 million to the Green Home Service with the further aim of cutting bills for homeowners through a reduction in consumption.

There were also ambitious plans for extended use of meters in domestic properties to offer incentives to reduce carbon consumption.

The chancellor also unveiled a target to make all non-domestic and commercial property zero carbon by 2019 – in addition to earlier pledges to ensure all new-build homes were carbon neutral by 2016.

Mortgage scheme is going for gold

FOLLOWING last week's budget, the proposal for Government backed so-called "gold standard" mortgages is still on the agenda.

The chancellor confirmed a working group to investigate the feasibility of such a scheme would be established.

The Government plans to launch a new system which will grade all mortgages, with the most secure given a gold standard Kitemark.

The scheme is intended to make it easier for lenders to sell on mortgages to investors by providing them with greater reassurance about the quality of the loans they are signing up for.

The new system is designed to re-open the market for wholesale mortgage financing. It is hoped that getting the wholesale money markets working again will provide banks with access to cheaper funding, which could result in lower mortgage rates for consumers.

Government statistics show some £100 billion worth of mortgages are funded by secondary borrowing (using funds from money markets rather than deposits), making up 30 per cent of the UK market.

Price slump won't be so bad for us to bear

BY NICK AMES

THE county's property market is looking in better shape than elsewhere in the UK according to a recent survey from estate agents Cluttons.

Good transport links to London and the south coast mean some areas of the county have been benefiting from price rises in recent years, but at a reasonable level.

This suggests Kent is now in a position to emerge on a path of continued growth should prices see a blip as there has not been the huge rises seen elsewhere in the South East.

"I think one of the advantages Kent might have in the next year or so is prices haven't gone up quite as much – they haven't been as crazy as in Guildford and places like that," said James Best-Shaw, a Cluttons partner.

"If there is a price adjustment you might see perhaps five per cent come off in Kent whereas you could see 20 per cent off elsewhere."

The consultancy also finds there is a ready-made market in the county waiting for good value properties to emerge.

"In the mid-term this should ensure sufficient demand to prop up prices amid a wider slump."

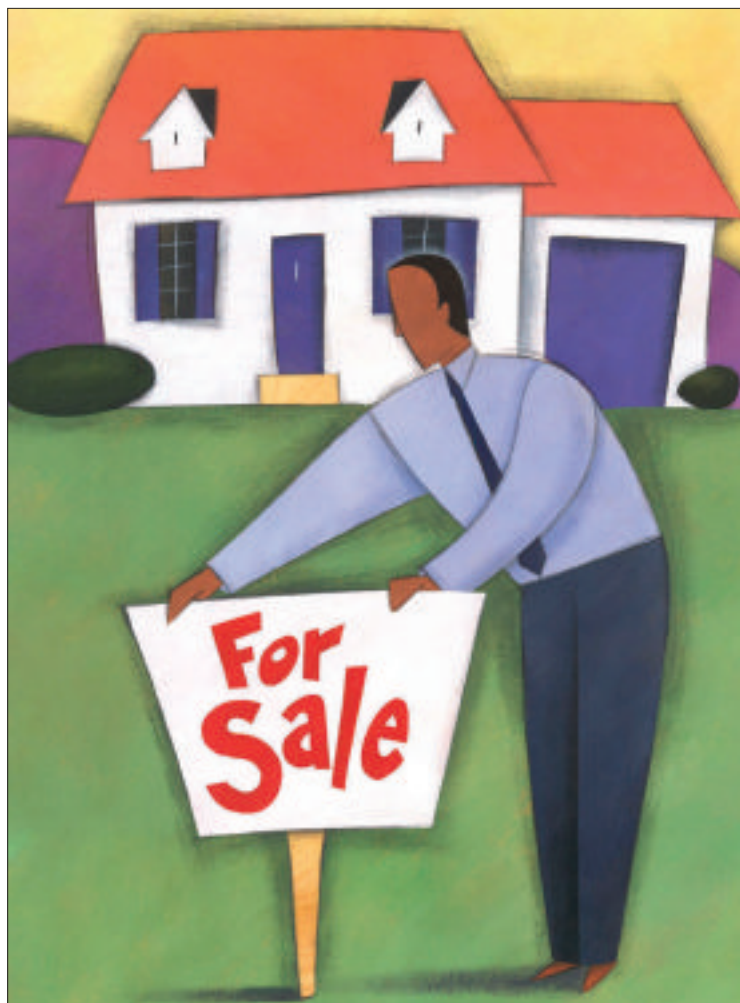

"There are so many people sitting in rented accommodation who are looking for houses for £500,000 upwards and they think they deserve a bargain," explained Mr Best-Shaw.

"If you offer them just a little bit of value they'll come in very strongly because they don't want to sit in rented forever, they want to get on with their lives."

While investors have customarily looked to the towns of Sevenoaks and Tunbridge Wells, these are perhaps not the best investments in the present climate. Prices have increased dramatically in these towns and could now fall dramatically.

In response Cluttons is urging to buyers to consider up-and-coming locations such as Ebbsfleet, only 20 miles from London and surrounded by countryside.

Other recently identified property futures hotspots have been identified as Folkestone and Ramsgate – both are towns which seeing investment in infrastructure and due to benefit from the high speed link to London.

WAITING: Many people are sitting in rented accommodation whilst they wait for the right property to come up for sale

MOTORS NEWS

New Suzuki/Vauxhall baby's budget boost

CHANCELLOR Alistair Darling's Budget crackdown on bigger cars could not have been better timed for Vauxhall and Suzuki.

Both will launch a space-efficient, environmentally friendly small car over the next few weeks – most versions qualifying for the lowest band of road tax.

The newcomer is a Suzuki design, to be sold by the Japanese marque as the Splash and replacing the boxy Wagon-R mini MPV, while Vauxhall's version replaces its Wagon-R clone, the Agila, and carries on that name.

Three engines will be offered across both ranges: 64bhp one-litre three-cylinder (Agila only) or 85bhp 1.2-litre four-cylinder petrol units or a Fiat-derived 74bhp 1.3-litre turbodiesel.

Chrysler 'heavy' gets even tougher for '08

WHETHER you like the Chrysler 300C saloon or estate for looking like a Mafia hitman's wheels or a poor man's Bentley, it has been a big success for Chrysler.

With the optional 'Bentley' mesh grille, the 300C looks like it should cost twice what it does, which is from just £27,495 despite a facelift for the '08 model.

There is also an all-new Mercedes-powered diesel flagship (pictured, from £32,495) with 'SRT-Design' features, as used on the 6.1-litre V8 SRT-8 (£40,995) petrol-powered performance flagship.

Hyundai goes the extra length for i30 Estate

HAVING launched one of the more stylish newcomers to the Ford Focus or family hatchback sector recently, Hyundai was under pressure to come up with a good looking estate version.

The Korean marque has risen to the challenge; the new i30 hatchback platform has been stretched by 50mm to boost leg and headroom and manages to be practical and spacious without looking too utilitarian.

Prices start from £12,995 with generous standard kit and goes on sale on April 2.

word can be applied in the SUV (sports utility vehicle) class.

Buyers laugh all the way to the bank too with prices from £23,995, even if the journey is less than smooth thanks to the Pathfinder's habit of leaning into corners and being unsettled by rougher surfaces.

The Pathfinder line-up no longer offers a petrol engine, but the single 2.5 dCi turbodiesel option is a good all-rounder and capable of averaging around 30mpg.

It is fairly refined generally and relaxed on the motorway, although the sluggish five-speed automatic gearbox of our car didn't do it any favours and the general driving experience is sapped by lifeless steering.

Loading into the capacious rear is helped by a relatively low floor and a tailgate that splits to allow loading through the upper section if needed.

Space for five in the main cabin area is excellent, though the two extra seats are really only suitable for kids.

Even basic trim levels are generous and cabin ambience is one of pleasant durability without flashiness, while reliability is virtually guaranteed.

USED CAR ROUND-UP: OUR PICK FROM A KEY SECTOR

CONVERTIBLES OPENING UP FOR SPRING carsforrent.co.uk

THOUGH Britain has a reputation for rainy summers, we have become one of Europe's biggest markets for convertibles. The phenomenon has been boosted by the rise of folding hardtop models, which not only tend to look better than fabric roof rivals, but also deliver better year-round comfort and weather protection, plus superior security from vandalism and theft. The three options featured here offer different approaches to the open-top philosophy, but are all relatively affordable secondhand, good to drive, stylish and great fun. The peak buying season also starts now...

MAZDA MX-5

MAZDA'S simple yet highly effective sports car – now in its third generation – started the recent stampede for 'wind in the hair' motoring in the UK. It was designed as a reliable successor to classic British sports cars and uses the traditional front engine/rear drive layout. The two-seater handles brilliantly and can be fitted with a hardtop for year-round motoring; you may even find a Mark-III folding hardtop (CC) model on the used market – at a price.

VAUXHALL TIGRA

THERE have been several takes on the coupe roadster/budget convertible theme lately, but the Tigra is the best. You get a well-built stylish car that looks good 'top down' or with the electrically-powered hard top raised. On the practical front, it is only a two-seater and the retracted roof does rob the boot of some space, but there is still plenty of stowage there and behind the seats. Above all, it's fun to drive – best exploited by the 1.8 Sport.

PEUGEOT 206CC

PEUGEOT's 206CC was not the first folding hardtop car to hit the modern market, but it did spark booming interest in the type. At the time it was the ultra-chic spin-off from one of Britain's best-selling superminis, and also benefited from being a genuine 2+2 model, though you do lose more than half the boot space in 'roof down' mode. The styling is more to female tastes, but it makes a great buy subject to checking that the roof works properly.

Juicy opportunities

Zest is an ad agency that is winning new business, industry awards, and admirers. Our people do things with passion, creativity, energy and all-round... zestiness. Problem is, with more and more great clients coming on board, we're going from a busy ad agency to a reeeeeeeaaally busy ad agency and we're finding that there's just not enough zest to go round. We need your brand of zest.

Account Managers

We need your professional insight and experience, your ability to foster strong relationships, and create clear, defined strategies.

Account Executives

Your brand of zestiness must include boundless energy, initiative, and ideally some experience in the world of advertising. You'll also need a black belt in organisation.

Project Manager – Website

We need an experienced Project Manager to oversee a client's suite of websites. You will act as liaison between the client, client service, and the web design team – receiving instructions, allocating work, and checking that all required updates and changes happen within defined time frames. You need the ability to gain the confidence of all parties, to be ordered and stay on top of all tasks irrespective of complexity, and you need experience in project management.

Artworker

Enthusiastic and ambitious artworker required. Experience of Quark and Creative Suite essential. You'll need a great eye for detail and able to cope with tight deadlines.

Web Content Technician

We're looking for a web-savvy person to input and manage content on a CMS system for a major client's websites. Would suit a recent college-leaver with an interest in, and aptitude for website development. An eye for detail and a knowledge of HTML is needed.

PR Executive with creativity

We need you to answer two very important questions. 1. How do you write a press release that gets information across, entertains and compels? 2. How can PR benefit from the web? If you can answer those questions and are excited about the world of public relations, we want to hear from you.

All roles are based at our Lords Wood office and come with a competitive package and bonus scheme. Benefits include contributory pension and private health schemes, free parking and a 4:30pm finish every Friday – a great way to start your weekend. To apply, please email your cv and a note detailing your own particular brand of zest to alan.young@thinkzest.com

Organic food delivery expands into county

ORGANIC home delivery company Abel & Cole is expanding its business in Kent with plans to create 40 new jobs in the area over the next three years.

With the assistance of investment promotion agency Locate in Kent, it has leased a new delivery depot in Aylesford.

The new depot will be used as the main distribution centre for deliveries across Kent especially opening up the south east of the county, East Sussex and South East London.

Abel & Cole has taken more than 5,000 sq ft of space at Larkfield Trading Estate and plans to seek out local farmers to add to its network of more than 60 independent growers and producers.

All produce is ethically sourced and organic, or from a sustainable source where no organic certification exists.

It delivers to some 40,000 consumers across the county each week.

Calls for Fairtrade to be brought into work

WITH Fairtrade Fortnight just finished, Kent businesses are being encouraged to go Fairtrade in the office.

Whilst so-called ethical, locally produced or Fairtrade products are increasingly found in British homes, they have not made it into office kitchens or works canteens, according to Business Link.

More than £300m is spent on Fairtrade in the UK and the organisation is encouraging more of us to enjoy the same at work.

More than 2,000 Fairtrade products are now available from 58 developing countries, from tea to biscuits, and from flowers to cotton towels and uniforms.

For a free guide about Fairtrade at work, call Business Link on 0845 600 9006.

Farmers can associate

KENT Farmers' Market Association will be formally launched on April 3. The association represents the 30 markets in the county, which hold almost 900 markets a year between them.

It has been set up through the initiative of their managers, most of whom are volunteers.

Small success but it's a man's world

■ BY ROB LIVINGSTONE

SMALL businesses based in Kent are among the most productive in the country.

Almost half of small companies in Kent are producing new products and services, according to the latest small business survey by the department for business, enterprise and regulatory reform.

The survey for 2006 and 2007, which is the most comprehensive study into enterprise in Britain, shows that 65 per cent of Kent's companies with fewer than 250 employees have ambitions to grow over the next couple of years.

And 83 per cent of Kent's small business had no problems obtaining finance from the first source they tried, compared to the national figure of 75 per cent.

But the results revealed that only 14 per cent of companies were led, or owned, by women.

Announcing the results, business minister Shriti Vadera said the absence of female bosses was harming the economic well-being of the country.

Challenge

"Getting more women into business is a challenge, not just for gender equality but for national economic success.

"We would have 700,000 more businesses if proportionally as many British women as American women started businesses."

Caroline Chambers, manager of the Channel Chamber of Commerce, said child friendly policies had made it possible for women to have a family and return to work without affecting their position, but female bosses did not have that luxury.

"Their businesses would not stand the pressures of them being absent for up to a year whilst having a baby, and combined with the high cost of childcare this figure is not surprising."

Disappointing

"Whilst women have managed to break through the glass ceiling of the corporate board room and are well represented in senior positions within the public sector, it is disappointing to see that only 14 per cent of small businesses with employees are led by women."

Thirteen per cent of small businesses also cited red tape as being one of the main obstacles to their success.

Ms Chambers said this was not surprising as the rules for employing staff, paying taxes, and transporting goods were not simple.

"The local government planning framework for businesses in the south east is a minefield and can lead to costly delays," she said.

"Government needs to do more to make it easier for our businesses to compete on a level playing field with the rest of Europe, whilst increases in hidden taxation like rises in fuel duty need to be minimised."

Injuries prompt yet more relegation fears

RELEGATION FEARS: Ashford's season has been blighted by injuries to key players

AFTER relegation from the London leagues, Ashford RFC would have expected to have been challenging for promotion in Kent One this season but a succession of injuries have hit the club hard.

Ashford are now third from bottom in the division and with just two games to go, they will need to pick up some points if they are to avoid back-to-back relegations.

Up next are Sittingbourne on March 29 before Ashford travel to Erith in the last game of the season on April 12.

Assistant head coach Martin Kelly points to last weekend's 43-12 win against Dartfordians as a turning ing point for his team.

He said: "It has been a hot and cold season for us this year.

"After coming down from the London leagues last year we thought we would be challenging at the top end of Kent One but injuries have hit us really hard this year.

"Losing our captain Paul Lake to injury was hard to take and has affected the team.

"The convincing win we had against Dartfordians was very important and I think we will definitely stay in this division."

Kelly hopes the club will be able to pick up enough points in the next few weeks to stay up so the club can rebuild for next season's campaign.

Another four points from their remaining games could see them finish mid-table, and Kelly thinks that would be a fairer reflection.

He said: "We have still got Erith and Sittingbourne to play and we have beaten them both this year so we are confident we can repeat that and secure our place in Kent One.

"Next year I hope that we can get a lot more youngsters coming through from the colts team and more coaches involved so we can rise up the league once again."

Reserving their place in the final

A PLACE in the final of the First/Second Division Cup final awaits Ashford Town reserves as they take a lead into the second leg of the semi-final.

The reserves beat Deal Town 2-0 on Saturday in the first leg at the Homelands and will be confident of finishing the job off when the two sides meet again on Easter Monday. It looks likely Ashford will face Dartford in the final as they won their semi-final first leg 1-0 against Margate.

Ashford resume league action next Saturday when they face a trip to run-away league leaders Dover Athletic.

Adam Miller feels refereeing decisions has cost the Gills in recent weeks

Ash get burnt by rampant Ashford

ASHFORD's game with Burnt Ash in Kent and Sussex Regional hockey league went to plan as they ran out 6-1 winners at the weekend.

The 1st XI have already won the league and it was a bit of a mismatch on Saturday as they trounced the division's bottom side.

Ashford are nine points clear and will be looking to end the season on a high with a win in their last game before they prepare for promotion to the national league.

The club take on Old Bordenians on Saturday looking for their 19th win of the season.

IN THE HUNT: Ashford Town's players show they are all together in their hopes of making the play-offs, while Anthony Hogg (inset) scored his first for the club at the weekend

Victory makes Town hopeful for play-offs

A WELL-deserved away win at the weekend has got Town manager Steve Lovell dreaming of seeing his side among the names in the play-offs at the end of the season.

A strong second half of the campaign has seen the Nuts and Bolts climb to 12th in Ryman Division One South and they are ten points behind the one remaining play-off place, although Town have two games in hand on most of their rivals.

Saturday's game didn't start particularly well for Lovell's side, when in the 14th minute an own goal took the wind out of their sails. Defending a corner, Sean Ray scored against his own goalkeeper to put Walton in front. However, it wasn't long before Town were back on level terms.

on the edge of the penalty area, who took one touch before planting a low shot into the corner of the net. It was Hogg's first goal for the club since his move from Sittingbourne and was also Town's 14th individual scorer this season.

Hogg almost doubled his tally but his looping header hit the bar and striker Mark Lovell was unable to convert after being swamped by the Walton & Hersham defence.

Ashford almost went behind three minutes before the break when goalkeeper Jamie Riley dropped the ball at the feet of Jon Neal who stroked it home, but the referee had already awarded a corner and the goal was chalked off.

Town scored the winner eight minutes into the second half with a contender for goal of the season. Jones picked the ball up 30-yards from goal and rather than holding the ball up, he let fly with an audacious shot that flew past Richard Stroud in the Walton & Hersham goal.

A delighted Lovell said: "It was a very good performance as we played very well considering the bad start we had.

"I was always confident we would score and to be honest we had a lot of chances."

The Town boss was delighted to see Jones score again after coming back from a hamstring injury and with the striker back in action, he hopes there is a chance Ashford can sneak into the play-offs.

He said: "The result has kept our season alive and it is still all to play for. If we can keep on winning you never know where we could end up. It has certainly been a great second half to the season, the squad is really working nicely and if we can keep that going we will be a force to be reckoned with next season."

SELECTED: Jamie Staff is hoping that he can impress at the World Championships in Manchester next week to boost his bid of making a final Olympic appearance at Beijing

World Championship challenge for Staff

OLYMPIC track cyclist hopeful Jamie Staff has been selected to represent Great Britain in front of his home crowd at the World Track Cycling Championships in Manchester next week.

Staff had been awaiting the announcement of the sprint team to compete in the event after all the riders were given a trial last week. The Ashford rider joins Chris Hoy, Jason Kenny, Matt Crompton and Ross Edgar in the squad to do battle against the rest of the world at the Manchester Velodrome.

World Championship after picking up gold in the team sprint in 2002 and 2005. He also became keirin world champion in 2004.

Staff told Yourashford: "I'm really excited, it will definitely be an advantage to have the home crowd cheering the British riders on. Once you get going there is nothing better than hearing the roar of the crowds."

"I think the French squad will be the favourites in the team sprint competition but our training has been going really well."

The Great Britain team have still not announced the trio who will be racing at the Beijing Olympics this summer. Staff has admitted this year will be his last chance to finally complete his medal collection with an Olympic triumph.

He added: "A good run at the World Championships would definitely put me in good stead ahead of this Olympic year. It really is a chance to show the selectors what you can do. There is a lot of pressure, each rider is trying to do their best and get picked for the Olympics. The pressure in a way is good as it spurs me on."

The World Track Cycling Championships begin on March 26.

HOME SWEET HOMELANDS

Keeping it in the family

ONE of Steve Lovell's first moves as Ashford Town manager was to bring his son, Mark, in from Dover Athletic to add some much needed firepower to the Nuts and Bolts frontline. The move is already looking like a shrewd one.

Since arriving at Homelands, the striker has regularly found the net and instantly struck-up a lethal partnership with Paul Jones, and he has no regrets about leaving the Dover promotion bandwagon.

He said: "I found myself on the bench at Dover so when the chance came up to come here I jumped at it and it has been brilliant. The team spirit is superb and growing all the time and from a personal point of view, I'm scoring goals in a team that will get stronger and stronger."

The Lovell-Jones partnership has yielded 11 goals this term and Lovell believes they compliment each other well on the pitch.

"Jonah [Jones] is a good lad, he holds the ball up really well but he is quite deceptive really because despite all his hold-up play he has great pace and loves running at defenders," he said.

"He's great to play up there with, actually he has been giving me a bit of stick saying he has set-up 90 per cent of my goals and is waiting for me to line one up for him, but I'm claiming an assist for his goal against Dover. I knocked it down before he put it in from 35-yards."

With promotion probably out of reach for Ashford this term, Lovell is convinced next season will be a totally different story and believes the players will have to perform to be part of the plans for the campaign.

He said: "Everyone has a feeling next season will be a good one. I know the manager wanted a play-off place when he came here but that hasn't happened. We certainly haven't under-achieved but we know next season we will be a threat. We need to keep performing though for the rest of this campaign as there will be many places up for grabs next season and we will need to be geared-up from the beginning."

If the strike partnership of Lovell and Jones can continue into next season then the Nuts and Bolts will be in with a shout.

New crash setback for Camier

SUPERBIKES

BRITISH Superbike young gun Leon Camier suffered a setback in his return to action from injury, when he crashed in the second Airwaves Ducati test in Spain.

The Ashford-born rider has been fighting to regain fitness after breaking his leg and pelvis in August during a race last season at Cadwell Park. The crash caused him to miss the last two remaining meetings of the season.

However, this latest crash, which happened last Wednesday, has caused him to miss out on the final day of the test at the Calafat circuit near Barcelona.

According to Camier, strong winds hindered his entry to the chicane and forced him to go over the handle bars, damaging his arm and shoulders.

Camier said: "I am feeling all right, I have damaged the back of my arm and my shoulder but I don't think it is too serious. I felt sore so I wasn't able to go out and carry on."

Before the crash he had completed 124 laps of the Spanish track with team mate Shane Byrne. It was the Sheppey rider who set the fastest time of the test with a lap of 1:24.90.

SET BACK: Leon Camier hopes to be fully fit for the season opener despite crashing in a test session in Spain

Camier added: "It was disappointing as before I crashed I had a bit of a breakthrough, I was getting quicker, feeling more confident and despite the wind I was pushing hard. On the whole it has been a good test and the bike is feeling more like my own now."

Camier believes he will be in the best shape possible when the British Superbike Championship begins at Brands Hatch on April 6. Before the meeting the Airwaves Ducati team will have a final shakedown run at Snetterton this weekend.
